

NEWS

KNOTWEED SPECIALIST CELEBRATES

JAPANESE knotweed removal special Environet is celebrating 20 years in business.

MD and founder, Nic Seal, said: "I have enjoyed the challenges and opportunities involved in building the company and inventing Xtract, now patented in various countries across the world.

"It is one of the most eco-innovative and cost-effective methods of eradicating this highly invasive weed."

Knotweed has quite rightly earned itself the reputation as being "indisputably the UK's most aggressive and destructive plant", (Environment Agency).

It is now number one on the list of the UK's most invasive plant species. It was introduced into the UK in the 1840s as an ornamental plant.

It is difficult to obtain finance on properties with knotweed present.